

UKGFF 2014

April 30th, 2014

The UK Green Film Festival 2014 gets underway in June, bringing the freshest voices in environmental documentary filmmaking to venues across the country. With their collaborators Picturehouse Cinemas and sponsors Friends of the Earth, UKGFF will be screening seven feature length documentaries in 15 cities between the 1st and 8th of June.

"Our aim is simple. We want to help people understand their impact on the environment, and what they can do to reduce it. Film has the power to do that; to provoke thought, to inspire, and to entertain. That's what the UK Green Film Festival is all about." John Long, Festival Co-founder

UKGFF opens at Hackney Picturehouse on the 1st of June with the UK Premier of The Last Catch, a cautionary examination of the rapid growth of the tuna industry and its effects on the environment, and closes a week later with the awards ceremony plus a special screening of Expedition to the End of the World, a real-life adventure film for the 21st Century which follows a group scientists, artists and philosophers as they sail to the melting massifs of North-East Greenland.

A host of exciting and thought provoking films will screen in between, including Lost Rivers which delves beneath the surface of the worlds cities to explore subterranean streams, and the 2012 SXSW Audience Award winner for Best Feature Length Documentary Bay of All Saints. The festival will also be hosting an array of live music events, Q&As with filmmakers, environmental campaigners and representatives from friends of the earth.

Check back in at Rhythm Circus throughout May for reviews of all the documentaries screened at UKGFF this year.
